WESTERN GEM

Magic City of the West
Heart, one day, of wilderness
Despite thy panic, fire and strife
Thou tremblest now, the soul of life.
Who has witnessed thy past glory?
Who can tell in full thy story?
But why care we for yesterday?
Thou art ours—to build today.
Oft our beauteous lake has sighed;
Blessings came with each flood tide;
And as new tides shall ebb and flow,
More blessings on thee we'll bestow—
With the structures we shall raise
Ideals for all the world to praise.
Wizards though we cannot be
More enchanting we'll make thee.
The wand of wisdom we shall wield;
Ambition sown, will beauty yield.
As centuries come and centuries go,
We'll keep thee—magical Chicago!

Marjorie Brumbaugh

*A*CROSS foreign seas, from many and varied lands, bearing with them the color and romance of distant nations, have journeyed foreign envoys of brotherhood to witness a glorious creation, the product of a majestic metropolis—symbolic of a spirit of international good will, creative invention, and a striving, conquering spirit—the Chicago Century of Progress Exposition.

Impelled by the beams of magnetic Arcturus, the Fair has already opened its portals to a wondering, appreciative people conglomerated from the four corners of the world. Never in the course of man's existence has been seen a centenary so universal in scope and cooperation. Leviathans of the deep, aeroplanes, automobiles, dirigibles, improved means of transportation binding the world together, tell the tale of how scientific knowledge, advancing from the basic findings of our venerated forefathers, have wrought—in our humdrum, every-day lives—sweeping changes through education, science, and art. Beautiful architectural edifices, forming and housing the second international position of Chicago, furnish tangible evidences of the unsurpassed handiwork of the thinking individual today.

Thus, inspired and enchanted by the strange fairyland picture of a Century of Progress, the 1933 Lantern makes its entrée. In presenting the achievements of Roosevelt students, we have ever kept before us the ideal of Progress exemplified in the various fields of educational endeavor. The spirit of the Fair will furnish an animating incentive to our graduates entering the business field or following the trail of a higher education. May we ever continue our pledge to go forward!

Pearl Siegleman.

AN EDIFICE

Onward—ever upward build, O Youth!
An edifice on sturdy Knowledge found;
Raise by ambition in the light of Truth
To heights and breadths that know no bound,
A structure styled in pure Simplicity;
Not hall of fame, but haven to the meek,
And dedicated to sweet Charity,
Nor ever by temptation proven weak.
Go forth and ever upward build until
A character like this is then achieved.
Build strong, O Youth, until by words "I Will"
Thy Purpose is fulfilled—thy mind relieved.

Go forth, O Youth, into the great Life School,
To learn and live well by the Golden Rule.

JUNE CLASS HISTORY

FRESHY days—just four short years ago that seem like a week. It was a warm summer day that Tuesday, September 3, 1929, when we signed cards all day long in the Auditorium. Being taunted by upper classmen, making the honor roll, attending assemblies, we closed the book on our freshman year.

Climbing out of our state of timidity and shyness, we soon found enjoyment from participating in school activities. We cheered the football team on brisk winter Saturday mornings, and watched the number of championship shields mount through the efforts of our Fencing and Track Teams. Our sophomore year was an athletic success. School was great!

Leaving our happy, carefree complex behind, we soon were enveloped in a cloak of sagacious dignity, for were we not juniors? Being defeated in a Civic Club election, we kept our chins up, and soon found ourselves attending the Weekly luncheon, symbolic of obtaining a position on the staff. The Civics Club senior-junior social was a glorious affair. "Emerald Isle," "So This Is London," the Orchestra concert, joining Penaspir, J.Y.L., and other clubs—what more could a student want in the way of social life? Thus with a successful junior year, we entered upon our last lap, our final ambition realized—we became high and mighty seniors.

Then came the 4B elections, Jack Rubin, Don Lawrence, Christine Ohring, and Glenn Weeks were elected to the revered positions of class officers. The traditional 4B-4A social, and the All-City Conference Day made history for our class—something that will not soon be forgotten by those in attendance.

Graduating seniors! That phrase makes cold shivers run and down our spines. We are to leave all our school chums and activities only to start over again, if we go on; or keep them as memories if we are going to face the world straight in the face. Our senior officers—all good pals and worthy of their positions—were Gus Horschke, Al Davis, Janet Firing, and Gordon Sargent. All the excitement in picture taking for the Lantern and the ring buying helped the time pass all the more quickly. The Lantern claimed us on her staff and we were in Utopia.

High school days are ended, but weren't they grand? If we could only begin once more feeling all the better for our experience. Thus graduation brings with it a pause, in which we must express our gratitude and thanks to the faculty, and give up the bonds of high school; but we shall carry with us our education and experience gained within the portals of this great institution—Roosevelt.

JUNE CLASS WILL

THE assembled heirs of Roosevelt from the oldest senior down to the youngest of the fast-diminishing "freshies" were wrapped in gloom. There was a general air of sorrow but an undertone of excitement. No wonder! It was the day appointed for the reading of the will of the June class of 1933—the class that had gone on record as one of the most original ever graduated. As the lawyer who was to read the will entered, silence fell.

He cleared his throat and then read in a loud voice "The last will and testament of the June class of 1933."

We, the members of the said class, being mentally fit, do will all our effects to the following persons, to wit:

Item 1. To the new 4A boys, the privilege of taking the prettiest girls to all the social affairs of the school.

Item 2. To the new 4A girls, the pleasure of participating in all the assemblies.

Item 3. To the juniors, the fun of all the opening games, and the unholy joy of not responding to the cheer leaders.

Item 4. To the sophomores, best wishes for passing in that fiend of all subjects, geometry.

Item 5. To Mr. Gaffney, sincere thanks for giving us the opportunity of indulging in so many extra curricular activities.

Item 6. To Mr. Clarke, a fond farewell and the memory of the best class he ever sponsored.

Item 7. To all the 4A division teachers, solemn congratulations on having had the most handsome boys and most beautiful girls ever graduated from Roosevelt.

Item 8. To the office force, the privilege of forwarding such grades as they never before handled.

Item 9. To Miss Tinker, best wishes for the continued success of the "Weekly," in which all of our activities were so faithfully recorded.

Item 10. To Mrs. Phillips, many thanks for having made this Annual possible.

Item 11. To 209, best wishes for continued activity.

Item 12. To Mr. Schulz, grateful thanks for handling our finances so splendidly.

Item 13. To the brand new "sophs," (bless their souls) all the rides they can steal in the elevator.

Item 14. To Mrs. Moon, thanks for the plate lunches, and a sincere wish for their continued success.

Item 15. To everyone else, goodbye and good luck in making as fine a record.

Signed and witnessed this second day of June.

LIFE'S EMOTIONS

A Heaven of darkness,
An endless abyss,
A world of nothingness—
Fear of life.

A little spark,
A beautiful flame,
Ambition burning—
Fire of life.

An illusory possession
Of passionate needs,
New worlds to conquer—
Fervor of life.

Lucille Selwyn

FEBRUARY CLASS HISTORY

SILENTLY, awed by the several strange sights which greeted our youthful eyes, we walked up the marble steps into the auditorium, into a new environment, a new life, into Roosevelt! That was three and a half years ago, February 1930.

Looking back we outwardly smile yet inwardly shudder as we recall our freshmen days, with our trials and triumphs over algebra, our over-loaded brief cases, and senior pranks. Our regular diet consisting of spaghetti and chocolate milk and our persistency in poking our noses into places where they were not wanted, distinguished us as the latest additions.

Mashed potatoes and gravy raised us to the rank of sophomore. We saw "The Whole Town's Talking" and "Pirates of Penzance". We attended our initial football game and watched the fencing team take the city championship and the Kraft cup. We first sang "Go Rough Riders, Go", continually tormented the freshies, and began to exhibit a true high school spirit.

Our junior year whizzed by like a comet, leaving all of its beauty and brilliance behind. Most of us branched out into extra-curricular activities, encouraged the Student Council, the R.O.T.C. Band and topped it off with the Junior-Senior Social, given by the Civics Club.

We are now proud seniors. We run for offices, send poetry to the Weekly (even though it isn't accepted), and religiously follow the basketball team to the city championship.

We shall soon leave Roosevelt, its serious studies and its glamour and display. We shall depart with fond memories and a feeling that we have not left behind us a blank slate. As we think of Abe Berland and Bob Marks meddling in school politics, Doris Heyn and the All-City Girls' Conference, Daar, Dry, Levy, and Krieger fighting for Gold and Blue on the hardwood, and scores of others, we believe that those who follow in our footsteps will somehow benefit through our slight efforts.

THE welfare of every student of Roosevelt is the concern of the Student Council, the representative assembly of the school to which every division and club sends delegates. This organization deals with the problems confronting the student body in general and suggests possible solutions for them.

The discipline board of this body, as the name implies, has definite disciplinary powers. The clean-up committee has as its function the maintenance of cleanliness throughout the entire school building.

Aside from these two committees there are several others, including the ways and means, publicity, ticket, parliamentary procedure, scholarship, vocational guidance, and club charter. The chairmen of these committees and the officers of the council comprise the executive board. In arranging the large council meetings, the executive board acts as a steering committee.

In addition to its local activities, the Student Council last December sponsored the eighth annual all-city council. This event, which attracted city wide attention, was the greatest single achievement of the Roosevelt organization.

Standing—R. Rocho, M. Noel, O. Anderson, L. Lund.

THE STUDENT ACTIVITY OFFICE

TAKING care of the business of all the activities in which students participate, the Student Activity Office has a vital influence on the life of the school.

The office is located in Room 209 and is in charge of two faculty advisers, Mr. Ewald H. Schulz and Miss Elizabeth M. Waters. Under these advisers is a group of student secretaries, generally chosen from commercial classes for their good work. Two or three students are in the office every period of the day, and they receive invaluable experience in the routine of a real business office, which has often proved of help to them after leaving school.

Through the Student Activity Office passes all the financial business of the various entertainments given during the school year. It takes charge, also, of the finance and distribution of the two school publications, the Weekly and the Lantern. The clubs and organizations, notably the Civics Club and the Student Council, make it their headquarters. The officers of the hall guard force, the auto parking committee, and the clean-up committee work directly from 209.

This office and its functions are peculiar to Roosevelt; no other school in the city has anything quite like it. It is primarily for the students, and by consolidating all of their activities, it renders an important service to the school.

*I've been glad to have you in

*Sincerely,
Elizabeth Waters*

OUTSTANDING in the promotion of citizenship and school service is the Civics Club, the oldest and largest organization at Roosevelt. This club, through its executive board, arranges and conducts numerous memorial and patriotic assemblies.

The Executive Board is composed of thirteen officials elected by the Civics Club members. The Club also elects representatives, one from each division, who conduct the membership drive.

At the conclusion of this drive, each semester the club gives its members some unusual form of entertainment. Two other events of importance are the Junior-Senior social and the Freshman-Sophomore entertainment.

The organization has maintained a large membership even in depression times. In addition to its civic work, the Civics Club supports numerous projects sponsored by clubs not having treasuries of their own. The greater part of the expense of the last Student Council Conference Day was borne by the Civics Club.

THROUGH the efforts of the above officers, the Dean's Council has accomplished many notable tasks throughout the past year. Distribution of Honor Society Pins has been carried on, and in an effort to induce better sportsmanship, folders containing the basketball schedule, the personnel of both lights and heavies, and the various school cheers were distributed to the students.

A survey and advisory council composed of average students from each 4A division was established. This group was formed so that the 4A students could talk over their past mistakes and be prepared to advise the incoming students as to the best method of conducting themselves.

In order to put across this idea, representative groups from all 1A and 2B division rooms have been formed. It is hoped that by next September similar councils will materialize for every year in high school.

At the various meetings sportsmanship, fellowship, and citizenship have been discussed and efforts made to set up standards of attainment in these various lines, so that the leading student of each year could be distinguished.

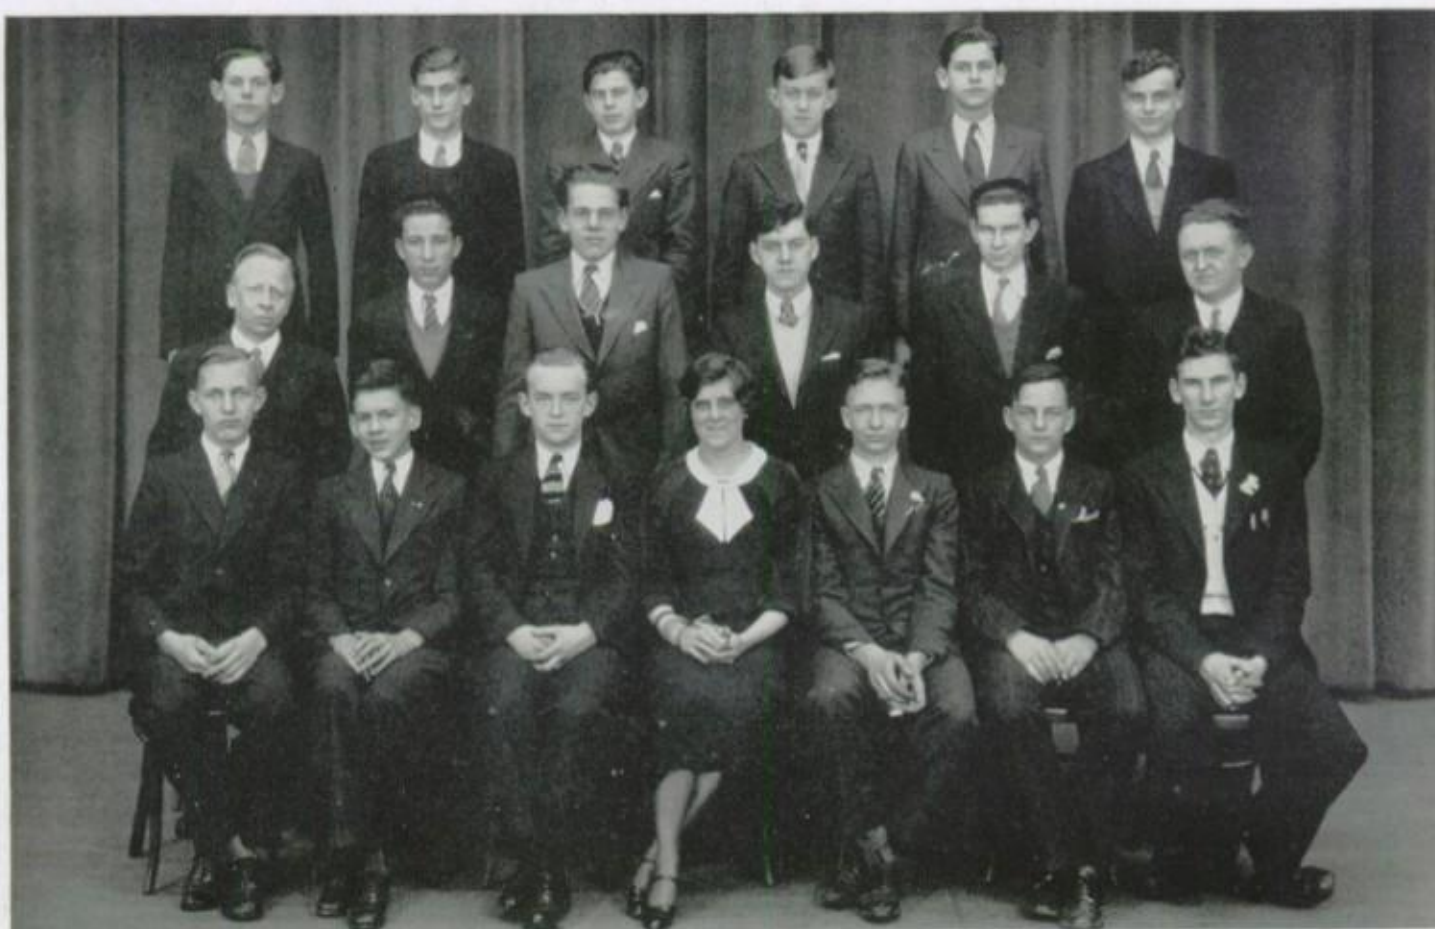

The social events conducted by the Council included a Christmas week outing at Mr. Hacker's home in Forest Glen, and the annual spring outing held at the Indiana Dunes State Park.

THE Hall Guard System is one of the outstanding organizations of Roosevelt. In addition to clearing the halls and maintaining order in them, this system assists with the seating at assemblies and directs fire drills. During these drills, the guards are responsible for the general order and conduct of the students.

Mr. Schulz, who has been in charge of this system since its organization, acts in the capacity of faculty advisor. A chief, who is also junior fire marshall, heads an executive staff composed of a boy and girl assistant chief, a secretary, and an assistant secretary. The guards for each period are supervised by a captain who works in cooperation with three lieutenants, one for each floor. The order of ranking in this system is as follows: guard; lieutenant, third floor; lieutenant, second floor; lieutenant, first floor; captain; assistant chiefs or secretaries; and chief.

AN ALERT mind, a good character, and a grade in physics not lower than 85, are the requirements necessary for eligibility in the Physics club.

This year, the Physics club has concentrated its efforts on the planning and making of a telescope. The lenses have already been purchased, the casting made, and the students are now working on the mounting.

The members have also taken a trip to Northwestern University where they visited the Dearborn Observatory, after which they heard a speech by Professor Lee, director of astronomy at the university.

For the past few years it has been the work of the club to take most of the small snapshots for the Lantern and this year the members have worked on that more industriously than ever, taking pictures of the faculty and action photos of athletics.

THE WEEKLY

EVERYONE is, of course, familiar with the Weekly, the eyes and ears of Roosevelt, the five column school newspaper. It is a well-edited organ containing interesting news stories, recording the events of every organization in the school. First honor rating awards have been received by the publication from the National Scholastic Press Association.

Work, work, and more work is the daily tune hummed by each and every member of the Weekly Staff from Miss Lavinia Tinker, literary sponsor, and her assistant, Miss Myrtle Schaefer, down to the newest cub reporter. There is no shirking; each one receives his assignment with a smile. Members of the staff are carefully chosen each semester from the journalism classes and must have no failing marks in their course books.

Last November, a delegation of five, consisting of Miss Tinker, Grace Kreikenbaum, Pearl Siegleman, Howard Teichmann, and Jack Rubin, traveled to Urbana to attend the Illinois High School Press Association Convention. Each member of the group paid his own traveling expenses.

The Weekly was chosen business chairman of the Greater Scholastic Press Guild, which meets at Wieboldt Hall on the downtown campus of Northwestern University, the third Saturday of every month.

Another laurel was added to Roosevelt's honor list when Miss Tinker was chosen chairman of the newspaper section of the coming convention of the National Scholastic Press Association, to convene in Chicago next October.

Irving Sheffel and Frank Freyer were editor-in-chief, and assistant editor, respectively, during the fall semester. At their graduation, Jack Rubin and Melvin Ury filled their respective offices. Grace Kreikenbaum and Blanche Weiss were the fall literary editors; their positions were ceded to June Goldberg and Marjorie Brumbaugh. The fall sports editor was Harold Gindick. Gertrude Schwartz and Irvin Siglin were made co-editors in the spring.

THE Schiller Verein or German Club consists of approximately one hundred and seventy-five members. Its purpose is to become more thoroughly acquainted with the German language and German customs.

The club, organized by Mrs. Zieglschmid, is now under the charge of Mrs. Valentine. Elaine Klasek was president for the first three semesters, and Geraldine Walsh now holds that office.

The outstanding event of the fall semester was a large party held in the boys gymnasium which was transformed into a German "Ratskeller." Root beer and pretzels were served.

Through the efforts of Dr. and Mrs. Zieglschmid, a group of members were given an invitation to the annual Northwestern German Club Christmas program. Among those who attended were Paul Michaels, Geraldine Walsh, Frank Wietzke, Clarence Steichman, Blanche Weiss, and John Hamilton.

REORGANIZED in the fall of 1932, the Spanish Club has rapidly become one of the largest in the entire school. Resuming work at the point where the old Spanish Club left off two semesters ago, the new group has endeavored to carry on and improve the work of the former.

It is the chief purpose of the club to bring the students at Roosevelt, who are studying the Spanish tongue, into closer touch with the customs and heritage of Spain and Latin America. In order to afford a better understanding of the club and its work, a requirement of one year of Spanish is made by the constitution.

During the past two semesters, the group has had the privilege of hearing Miss Ullrich, sponsor, tell incidents from her trip to Spain. Old Spanish customs, which have changed greatly in modern Spain, were also described. Portions of two modern books on Spain, "Two Vagabonds in Spain" and "Spanish Towns and People," were read to the group.

SINCE 1926, the J. Y. L. has been important among the clubs at Roosevelt. Being affiliated with the Jewish Youth Alliance, the organization was especially active last semester in all-city affairs.

Under the sponsorship of Mr. Mansell, and the guidance of the Board of Jewish Education, the J. Y. L. has advanced rapidly from a small group to its present membership of approximately one hundred and fifty. Though being non-sectarian, its chief purpose is to further Jewish education.

Taking time off from its holiday programs and socials, this organization won an all-city debate championship, and achieved a special section in the Voice of the J. Y. L., an all-city magazine.

THE primary purpose of the Citizens' Club is to function as a group for the benefit of every Roosevelt student. The Charity assembly, held last semester, is one example of their efforts in this direction. The opposition to indiscriminate cutting of the school budget and the movement for the maintenance of Crane College was led by the Citizens' Club with Irvin Sheffel and Billy Chiprin at the head.

Mrs. Lotz gaily accompanied the members on many interesting trips, including a round of the County Jail, a tour through the Illinois Bell Telephone Company, and a visit to the National Broadcasting company studios.

Regular meetings are given over to the discussion of current events or to individual reports, interesting from a civic standpoint, or to lively debates. The semi-annual socials of this organization have been very well attended. The club belongs to the all-city conference and sends two delegates to the meetings held monthly at the Men's City club.

R. O. T. C.

ROOSEVELT'S Reserve Officers' Training Corps, now under the supervision of Joseph V. Ackerman, Sergeant U. S. A. Military Instructor, has always been one of the most active organizations in the school. It is, in connection with Roosevelt, a valuable public servant; its scope extending beyond school life, it becomes of much benefit to the community.

Members of the R. O. T. C. usher at all school performances, socials, and the senior promenade, maintaining order and protecting school property. In addition to officiating in this manner, the organization, collaborating with the band, produced during the last two years, two plays, written by members of the Band. They were "The Musical Lieutenant" and "Meet the Major."

The R. O. T. C. maintains a Rifle Team which won second place in the all-city meet in 1933. During 1932, the corps was in many parades and important neighborhood events, the most outstanding of which were the Armistice Day parade, the Jubilee, and Chicago Day parades, the American Legion Installation, and the reopening of Irving Park Boulevard.

During the spring semester the staff officers appointed were Cadet Major Jerome Kanter, Battalion, Commander; Cadet Major Louis Fuchs, Brigade Staff; Cadet Second Lieutenant Robert Montgomery, Adjutant; Cadet Second Lieutenant Charles Beck, Publicity Officer; Cadet Second Lieutenant Leonard Kahn, Supply Officer, the Line Officers are: Cadet First Lieutenant Theodore Geocariss, Cadet First Lieutenant Richard Bedau, Cadet First Lieutenant Robert Pohlmann, Cadet Second Lieutenant Donald Lawrence, Cadet Second Lieutenant William Paulson, Cadet Second Lieutenant Charles Benson, Cadet Second Lieutenant Sam Brown.

TO CREATE a bond of fellowship; to prove of value educationally and socially; to effect a closer cooperation among boys of high school age—these are the objectives which the Senior Hi-Y has striven to attain during the past two semesters. To this end, the organization participated in the Older Boys' Conference at Joliet during November, 1932, and at meetings of the Northwest Hi-Y Association of Chicago. Donald Hanson and John Hamilton were Hi-Y delegates to the former; at the latter, Hanson and Robert Gibson were representatives.

In connection with its educational activities, the Hi-Y has conducted tours to various points in the Chicago area. The Century of Progress grounds, the new Lawson Y. M. C. A. building, the campuses of Northwestern University and the University of Chicago, and the Chicago clearing house have all been visited by the club during the past year. The Hi-Y has also listened to addresses by Mr. Hacker, Roosevelt dean of boys, Dr. Clarke, of the Illinois Social Hygiene league, Dr. Reiner, of the Waveland Avenue Congregational Church, Cliff Carey, secretary of the Irving Park Y, at which place the club meets and Dr. Glenn D. Adams, city Hi-Y secretary. The Hi-Y father and son banquet was one of the high-lights of the past semester.

THE LIBRARY

AS THE central laboratory in the school, the library, situated in the center on the second floor, offers to the students an ideal place to read and collect information. Included in the book collection are fiction, reading list non-fiction, and textbooks on every subject taught at Roosevelt. The library also contains general reference works, and an extensive collection of magazines, pictures, pamphlets, and slides.

The books do not circulate now because the staff has been cut in half, making the necessary work an impossible task. However, the students may use the library as a reference and work room during study periods and before and after school.

With the exception of Miss Rathbun and Miss Agardh, the library routine is taken care of by a select group of student assistants who receive one-fourth of a major credit for the work.

Because of the lack of money, no major functions were sponsored by the library during the last two semesters. In order to renew the subscriptions to several of the more valuable magazines, it was necessary to take up a collection among the students. Nevertheless, the number of magazines and books being received is less than half that of previous years.

What happens when the singing master is detained? Usually chaos is the result, but not so with Mr. Jolly's Singing School. Professor Sforzando and Herr Glissando arrive to conduct the singing for the evening. The Professor has a fine tenor voice and has had leading parts in operas, such as "Napoleon's Retreat from Moscow." He also has a favorite role—of poppy seed. A fitting background for his greatness is the accompanist, Herr Glissando. Glissando is a very temperamental genius given to climbing pianos and striking wrong notes. During the singing lesson, Mr. Rich, a capitalist, comes to enroll his daughter, Suzanne, in the school. A heated argument over the payments follows, but the Professor finally pockets a note for one semester's tuition. Everything is going along smoothly again when suddenly a knock is heard and two guards from the Home for Feeble-Minded enter. They have come to collect our dear friends, the Professor and Glissando, who, feeble-minded, believe themselves to be opera stars. After they have gone, it is discovered that the Professor tied Mr. Jolly to a chair in his room. They succeed in escaping the guards and return to conduct one more song.

The play ends with the recapture of the two musicians.

FOR the past three years Roosevelt's Choral Club has been recognized as the best high school chorus of its size in the city, having won the last three annual contests held at Orchestra Hall. This year it received the gold trophy awarded to Chicago's leading high school group.

The Symphonic Choir, a select group from the Choral Society, has frequently sung over the radio and at various affairs. Last June the choir sang at the dedication of the Hall of Science and this June at the Century of Progress Exposition. Of the various engagements, the pinnacle of success seemed to have been reached when the choir was asked to sing with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra at one of their monthly concerts, with Mr. Frederick Stock conducting. Since the Symphonic Choir is composed only of those students who pass a certain voice test, it is easily seen that the recognition it has gained is a result of the high standard Mr. Bergstrasser has set for the members.

THE orchestra, directed by Mr. Bergstrasser, has proved its worth on various occasions. During the past three years it has won first place in its division of the annual orchestra concert. It can also be counted on to accompany or play, as the case may be, at any concert or operetta. Those who have been present at any of Roosevelt's affairs well know the value of the orchestra.

There are three classes of orchestras, all under the same direction, the beginners, intermediate, and advanced. Recently a new system of promotion was introduced. Those who wished to try for a position in the advanced orchestra could challenge the person already holding the position. In this way an opportunity is given to all who wish to advance their positions.

EMERALD ISLE

THE annual operetta, produced by the orchestra and choral club under the direction of Mr. Erhardt Bergstrasser, was presented in June, 1932. The play was Emerald Isle by Sullivan and German.

Under England's rule, Ireland had all but lost her identity when Terence O'Brien returns from England, the peasants wake up and rebel against the English Lord Lieutenant.

First Terence employs a certain Professor Bunn to teach the peasants the Irish customs which they have forgotten. Later it is discovered that the erstwhile Professor is also in the employment of the Lord Lieutenant as a teacher of elocution.

When the Lord Lieutenant hears of the rebellion, he orders his troops to exterminate the rebels who are having a secret meeting in the caves of Carrig-Cleena. But the soldiers have been frightened by the tales of magic that Bunn has told them and they refuse to budge.

At last they advance but Bunn goes to inform the peasants. Thus it is that when the soldiers arrive, the people are ready. Terence confesses his love for the Lord Lieutenant's daughter at which confession the Lord Lieutenant is even more incensed. Everything is settled when Bunn explains that both the Irish and English have American blood and since the Americans and English are good friends they cannot be rebels. This sounds conclusive to the Lord Lieutenant, so he immediately consents to the marriage of Terence and his daughter and forgives the Irish peasants.

ROOSEVELT'S Intermediate Band is the "preparation field" for those students wishing to enter the Advanced Band. In this organization, the laboratory for the development of future concert bands, the students who have mastered the fundamentals of their instruments, may obtain the experience necessary to handle the average type of band music.

Besides experience in music, the students receive elementary military training in preparation for the marching they will do in the Advanced Band. This training teaches a student to obey commands and develops his mind and muscles to co-ordinate immediately.

The Intermediate Band occasionally plays at assemblies, and in the future expects to enter the inter-school band contests.

BAND

THE Roosevelt High School Band has progressed rapidly under the direction of Captain R. A. Seabury, since he came in April, 1929. It has grown from one band of thirty members, to the present four, totaling over one-hundred and sixty students.

Serving the school as a producer of pep and spirit, it plays at assemblies, football and basketball games, and participates in the Armistice and Decoration Day parades. Each semester the Concert Band gives a play and a concert, presenting "The Musical Lieutenant" in 1932 and "Meet the Major" this year. This section of the Band has also placed in four of the five contests in which it has entered. It is considered one of the best marching bands in the Chicago High School R. O. T. C. unit with a membership of eighty eight.

BECAUSE of the great interest shown by the Roosevelt students in creative writing, it was found necessary two years ago to form another writers' club, a branch of Penaspir. This second club was at first called Junior Penaspir, but as time went on, the students changed the name to the Scribblers' Club.

This organization has the same objective as its parent; namely, to develop and foster creative ability by giving ample opportunity to express ideas and personality through the writing of essays, sketches, short stories, and poems. Every Wednesday the members meet in Room 117 where they have many interesting round table discussions. Not only do they make comments and constructive criticisms on their own literary efforts, but they study style, mood, materials, word choice, and technique of a few great artists who stimulate imagination and furnish atmosphere.

This year, the Scribblers have been especially interested in the fascinating study of word effects and have made great progress in their efforts to use concrete and specific words which bring up the right associations. Some of the students have written articles of unusual merit and have become contributors to the Lantern or to the literary column of the Weekly.

THOSE students, blessed with a literary bent, have found themselves in the past years attending the bi-monthly meetings of Penaspir. This lively literary organization welcomes all who are interested in creative writing of one kind or another.

A study of the essentials requisite to successful composition takes up a major part of the club's time. Poetry and prose thus written, range in theme from our own well known city to the sloe-eyed natives of the mysterious far East. Such attempts fill a large part of the literary sections of both the Weekly and the Lantern.

During the past year, the club has enjoyed a particularly fine group of programs. Among these were lectures from such eminent writers as Marjorie Barrows, Child Life editor, and Harper Lesch, chief editorial writer of the Daily Times. These and others gave their recipe for success to the young authors.

Penaspir derives its meaning from pen and aspiration. The members really enjoy bringing their brain children to the meeting to be criticized under the careful guidance of Miss Etta Clark, the club's sponsor.

ROOSEVELT'S development in the architectural field within the last few years is due, without doubt, to the untiring efforts of the Architectural Club. The purpose of this organization is to instill a greater appreciation for all things architectural and to establish among its members the true spirit of cooperation, sportsmanship, and tolerance that characterizes the followers of that profession. All of the members of the club intend to continue their studies after graduation.

Among the activities of the club are the sponsoring of exhibits displaying the noteworthy accomplishments of its members during the school year, educational excursions to places of merit in the architectural field and various competitions which are instrumental in awakening keener enthusiasm in its members. Last semester a World's Fair poster contest and a Cachet Contest were held. The latter contest resulted in the designing of the cachet by Joseph Kichaven, celebrating the fifth anniversary of the International Drawing Exchange, an organization closely connected with the Architectural Club.

THE International Drawing Exchange is an association of students interested in art and architecture. It was organized to further friendly relations between the nations of the world through the exchange of drawings and other educational material.

The club pin was designed by Orville Held of Schurz High, the membership card by Joseph Kichaven, the certificate of merit by Leonard Kurth, and the certificate of membership by Henry Lohmiller.

The fifth anniversary of the I. D. E. was celebrated in March with a cachet designed by Joseph Kichaven. The cachet was stamped on more than one thousand letters sent to all parts of the United States, Denmark, and Canada.

The Exchange and its purposes were further evidenced by the many exhibits which were held in 1932, at St. Louis, Missouri under the auspices of the Western Arts Association; at Des Moines, Iowa, under the auspices of the National Council for prevention of war; at Rockford, Illinois; Chicago Normal school; Northwestern University in Evanston; the University of Illinois; and the International House, University of Chicago, where notables viewed them.

THE Drama Unit was formed in the fall semester of 1932 and it is now the chief dramatic organization in Roosevelt.

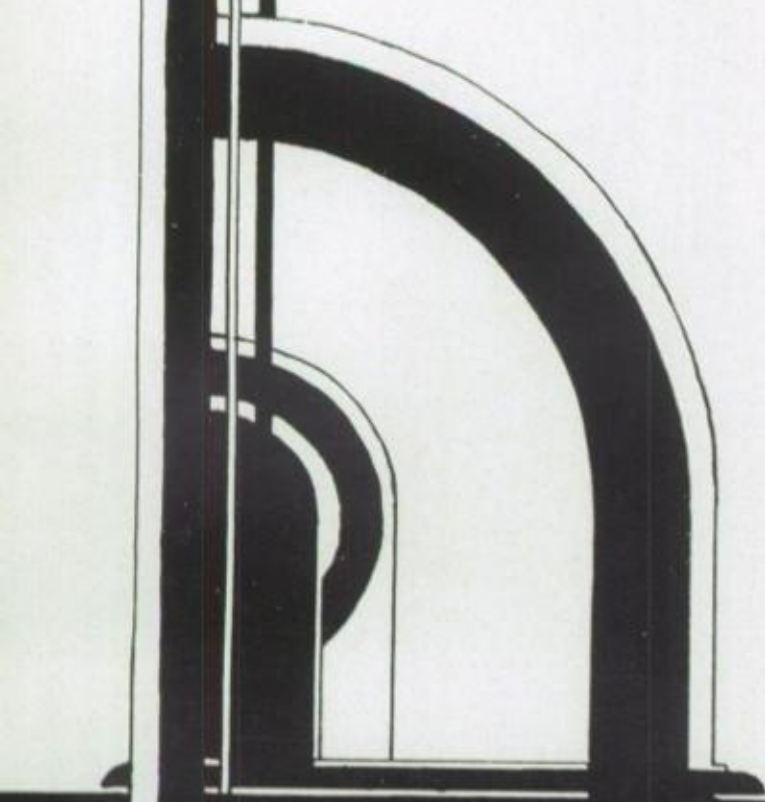

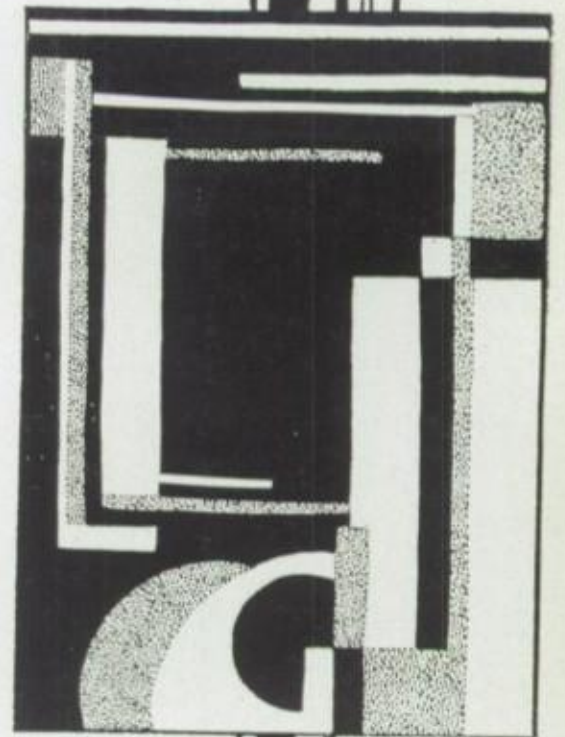

Last semester various plays were presented. Chief among these was the "Shoes That Danced," given in the "Little Theatre," better known as Room 249. A small admission was charged.

This semester the class interested itself in the study of Greek Drama. "The Boy Will," a story of the boyhood of Shakespeare was the major production. Other plays presented were "Do Your Worst," "Game of Chess," "Ma Rogers Breaks Loose," and "Antigone."

It is hoped that this interesting unit will continue the good work it has started.

ATHLETICS ≡ SECTION ≡

In fields of competition, whether mental or physical, we obtain from our athletics a sense of fair play, of sportsmanship, and an ability to accept defeat

SPORTS

THE two outstanding Roosevelt athletic accomplishments of 1932-33 were made by the lightweight basketball and golf teams. By a triumph over Bowen 33-25, the lights—Dry, Daar, Krieger, Levy, Schneider—copped the city title, as did their Sackheim coached schoolmates. Dene Zahn, Joe Blanton, Bernie Turner, Abe Marco, and Tom Kissane—climaxed a two year bid for the city golf crown by winning that trophy. The squad, however, was rewarded with a championship shield.

Second only to these attainments was the work of the Roosevelt basketball five in the Stagg tournament. Displaying unusual speed and shooting ability, the squad took second place in that cage meet. Ted Weinhouse, expert sharpshooter, won tourney scoring honors with a five game total of 57 points. Marv Colen aided considerably by playing brilliantly throughout each contest.

Although they finished fourth in the North Section, the heavy basketeers fought gamely in each of their ten struggles, winning four and losing six. Captain Jim Gordon and Ed O'Connell were the point getters of the team.

This was not a banner year as far as the football team was concerned, the outfit ending the season in third place. The Rough Riders, however, fought valiantly against every opponent it faced. Butch Kubitz and Honey Flickinger played brilliantly throughout the season.

1933 promises to be a great baseball year for Coach Stockdale's cavorters. With plenty of seasoned material on hand plus able recruits, the Gold-Blue should go far in North Side competition.

The junior tracksters garnered third in the city outdoor meet, while the seniors took sixth place. Morry Kesler and Red Neross won the only junior firsts. Chuck Pollensky broke the city senior high jump record with a great leap of 6 feet 1¼ inches. Red Sargent also shattered the record with a jump of six feet.

Captain Gus Horschke led the senior swimmers to third place in the city meet. Gus, as usual, proved the best of the breast strokes. Jerry Weinstein won the only junior first by taking the back stroke.

The Gold-Blue fencers captained by Henry Hyler, having defeated many foes in dual meets, promise to go far in defense of the city title which Roosevelt won last year.

The Gold-Blue gymnasts won third place in the high school division of the A. A. U. meet. Gus Horschke took second place in the all-round performance.

Considering the team championships won, and the individual crowns gained by our athletes, it may be said truthfully that 1932-33 was one of the most successful years in the athletic annals of Roosevelt.

LIGHTWEIGHT BASKETBALL

ACCOMPLISHING what only one other Roosevelt Lightweight basketball five had been able to do, the 1932-1933 Gold-Blue edition captured the city championship.

Coach Chappel developed one of the best pony quintets ever to appear on a hardwood floor. The team possessed everything necessary for a great outfit since speed, cleverness, and sharpshooting ability were omnipotent in its success.

The Rough Riders breezed through nine North Section games. Schurz, Senn, Lake View, Waller, were each defeated twice; Lane was conquered once. The only loss was a one-point victory for the Tech boys.

In the semi-final games Roosevelt vanquished two West Side teams, beating McKinley, 44-21 and Austin, 27-24.

The championship contest which took place at the Gold-Blue's jinx court, White City, proved to be a walk away for them. Bowen simply could not cope with the Chappelites, and at no time after the first quarter were the latter less than eight points ahead of the South Siders. The game ended with the Rough Riders overcoming their jinx and with the city crown in the bag 33-25.

Captain Red Dry and Dick Daar were the outstanding players on the team, both being picked on the all-city pony quintet. Jack Krieger, Lou Levy, and Seymour Schneider rounded out the five, each contributing greatly to its string of victories. Dry, Daar, Krieger, Levy, Schneider, Lubin, Feldman, White, and Wolinsky received major letters. Brandt and Mueller were awarded minor "R's."

FOOTBALL

BATTLING gamely to the end, the Roosevelt football squad finished third in the 1932 North Side Championship struggle. It was the first time that a team instructed by Coach Alton failed to place second in the section. However, the Gold-Blue squad was not eliminated from the race until late in the season.

Vanquishing Lake View, 13-12 and fighting Lane into a scoreless tie were the highlights of the season.

The eleven's only losses were a tight contest dropped to Schurz, 7-0 and a spectacular game won by Senn, 20-7.

Among the bright spots in the team's record were the excellent performances in practice games. Upsetting the Roosevelt jinx of never winning a pre-season tilt, the Rough Riders walloped McKinley and Proviso.

Captain Gibson, Fishman, Frueh, Kubitz, Schulte, and Flickinger were the outstanding Gold-Blue stars with the last named receiving all-city honors. In recognition of having starred two years on the gridiron as a halfback, Butch Kubitz was selected to captain the 1933 outfit. Major letters were awarded to Gibson, Frueh, Baer, Schulz, Flickinger, Lidstrom, Kubitz, Fishman, Schulte, and Marks. Those who received minor letters were: Sevander, Valbracht, Dolinky, Wittenmeier, Oberlander, Nelson, and Stein.

ONE of the foremost organizations of Roosevelt is the "R" Club. Although this is a comparatively new organization, being organized in the fall of 1931, it has sponsored some of the most important athletic activities of the school.

During the last two semesters it has been responsible for the intramural sports of baseball, basketball, and swimming. The success of these activities has been unquestionable as the basketball tournament was entered by almost three-fourths of the divisions and baseball slightly less than this number. Another accomplishment of the "R" Club was the reorganization of the cheer leading squad, a group whose importance is known throughout the school.

Because of the huge success of intramural sports, enough money was made by the "R" Club to carry out the custom of the preceeding years. This is to give a semi-annual banquet at which many of the faculty members are guest speakers.

THE Athletic Association plays an important part in the life of a school girl; through it she obtains her school letter after procuring the necessary 1,000 points. The organization tries to instill in its members a sense of good sportsmanship and cooperation.

The council consists of one member from each division, elected by the girls in the room. Generally about two-thirds of the girls in the school are members.

Last year the association sponsored a Visitors' Day, wherein representatives of all the G. A. A.'s in Chicago met at Roosevelt and exchanged ideas and plans. There was also a Play Day in which teams made up from the four years played against each other. The big event of the season was the social which was in the form of a roller skating party. An orchestra and entertainment amused the guests while they partook of refreshments.

THE Girls' Swimming Club strives to produce an honest love of swimming and to further the use of leisure time in water sports.

The object of the club is to give more individual attention to the swimmer than would be possible in a regular class, and to teach its members to strive for perfection in their strokes and diving.

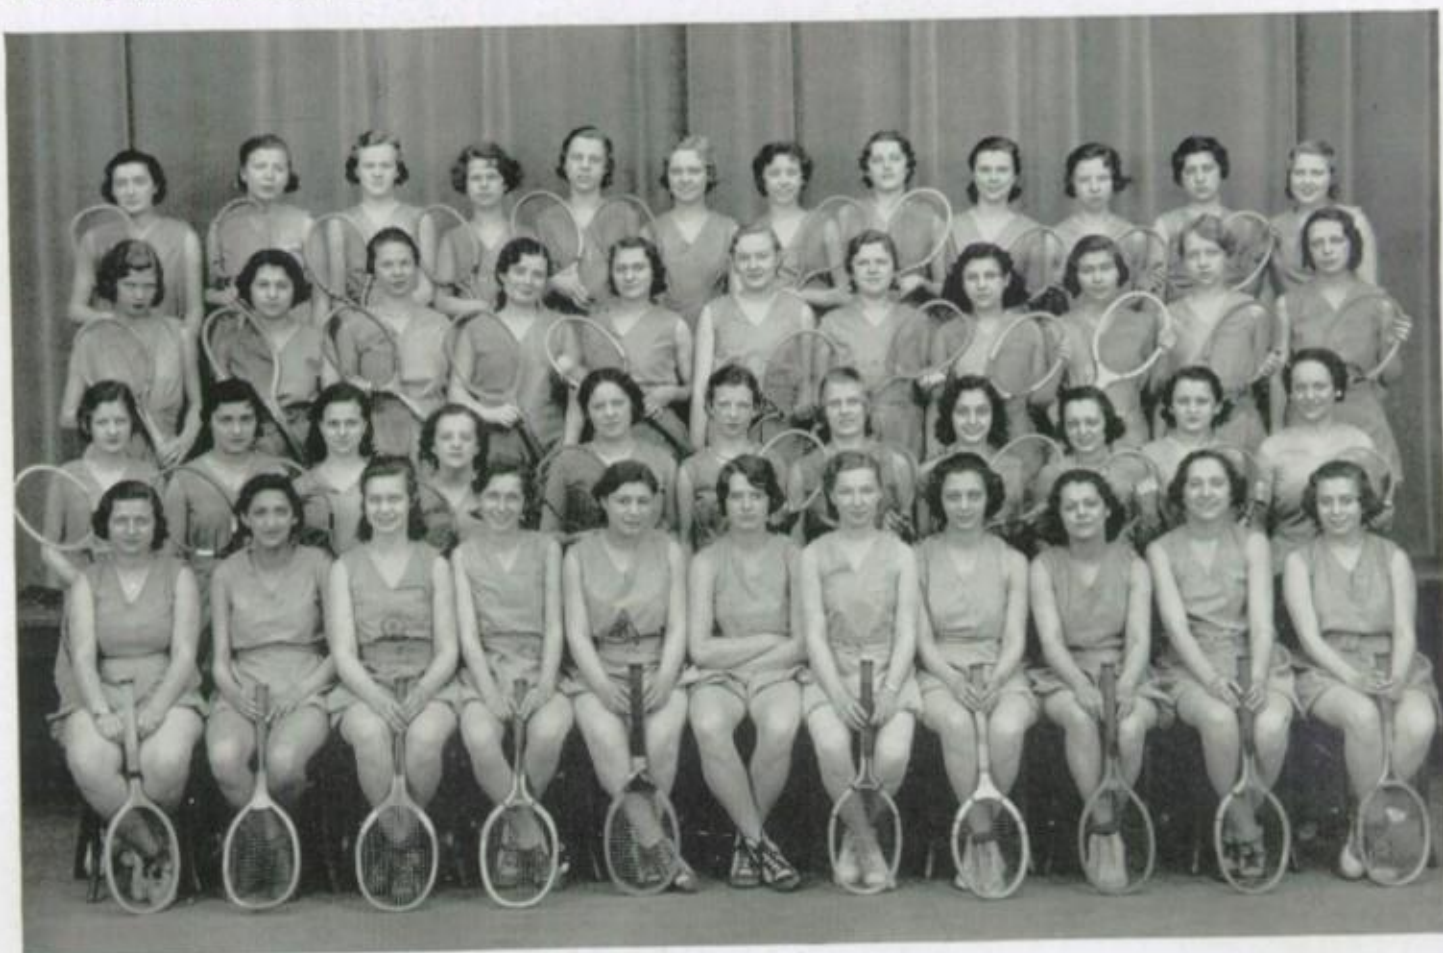

The requirements for admission to the club are the ability to swim three perfect strokes, execute a plain front dive and swim four continuous lengths of the tank.

During the semester, the organization displayed its skill by an exhibition for the G. A. A. Visitors' Day, besides holding a splash party with Senn's Swimming Club.

THE Girl Reserves is a national group which is under the guidance of the Y. W. C. A. Its chief purposes are to face life squarely and find and give the best in it.

A true feeling of fellowship, loyalty, service, and friendliness is preeminent at every meeting. In addition to serious work, the girls have parties, hikes, teas for their mothers, open discussion, and interesting tours. One interesting trip was through the back stage of the Uptown Theater.

Every year the club devotes its time to special projects, this time assisting the Red Cross in making garments and layettes for babies. The joy of Christmas was brightened for orphans through the distribution of dressed dolls and colored picture books donated by the girls.

The secret desire of the members is to obtain the official G. R. ring. It is a circumscribed blue triangle bearing the initial of the organization. The base stands for spirit and the sides represent knowledge and health. The circle represents a girl's relationship to other people and to her world.

ROLEIR, or the girls' "R" club, is an organization composed of those girls who have earned their city letters by obtaining the necessary points, some of which are compulsory and the others optional.

The aim of the club is to instill in its members the desire to promote good scholarship as well as sportsmanship among athletic girls of the school.

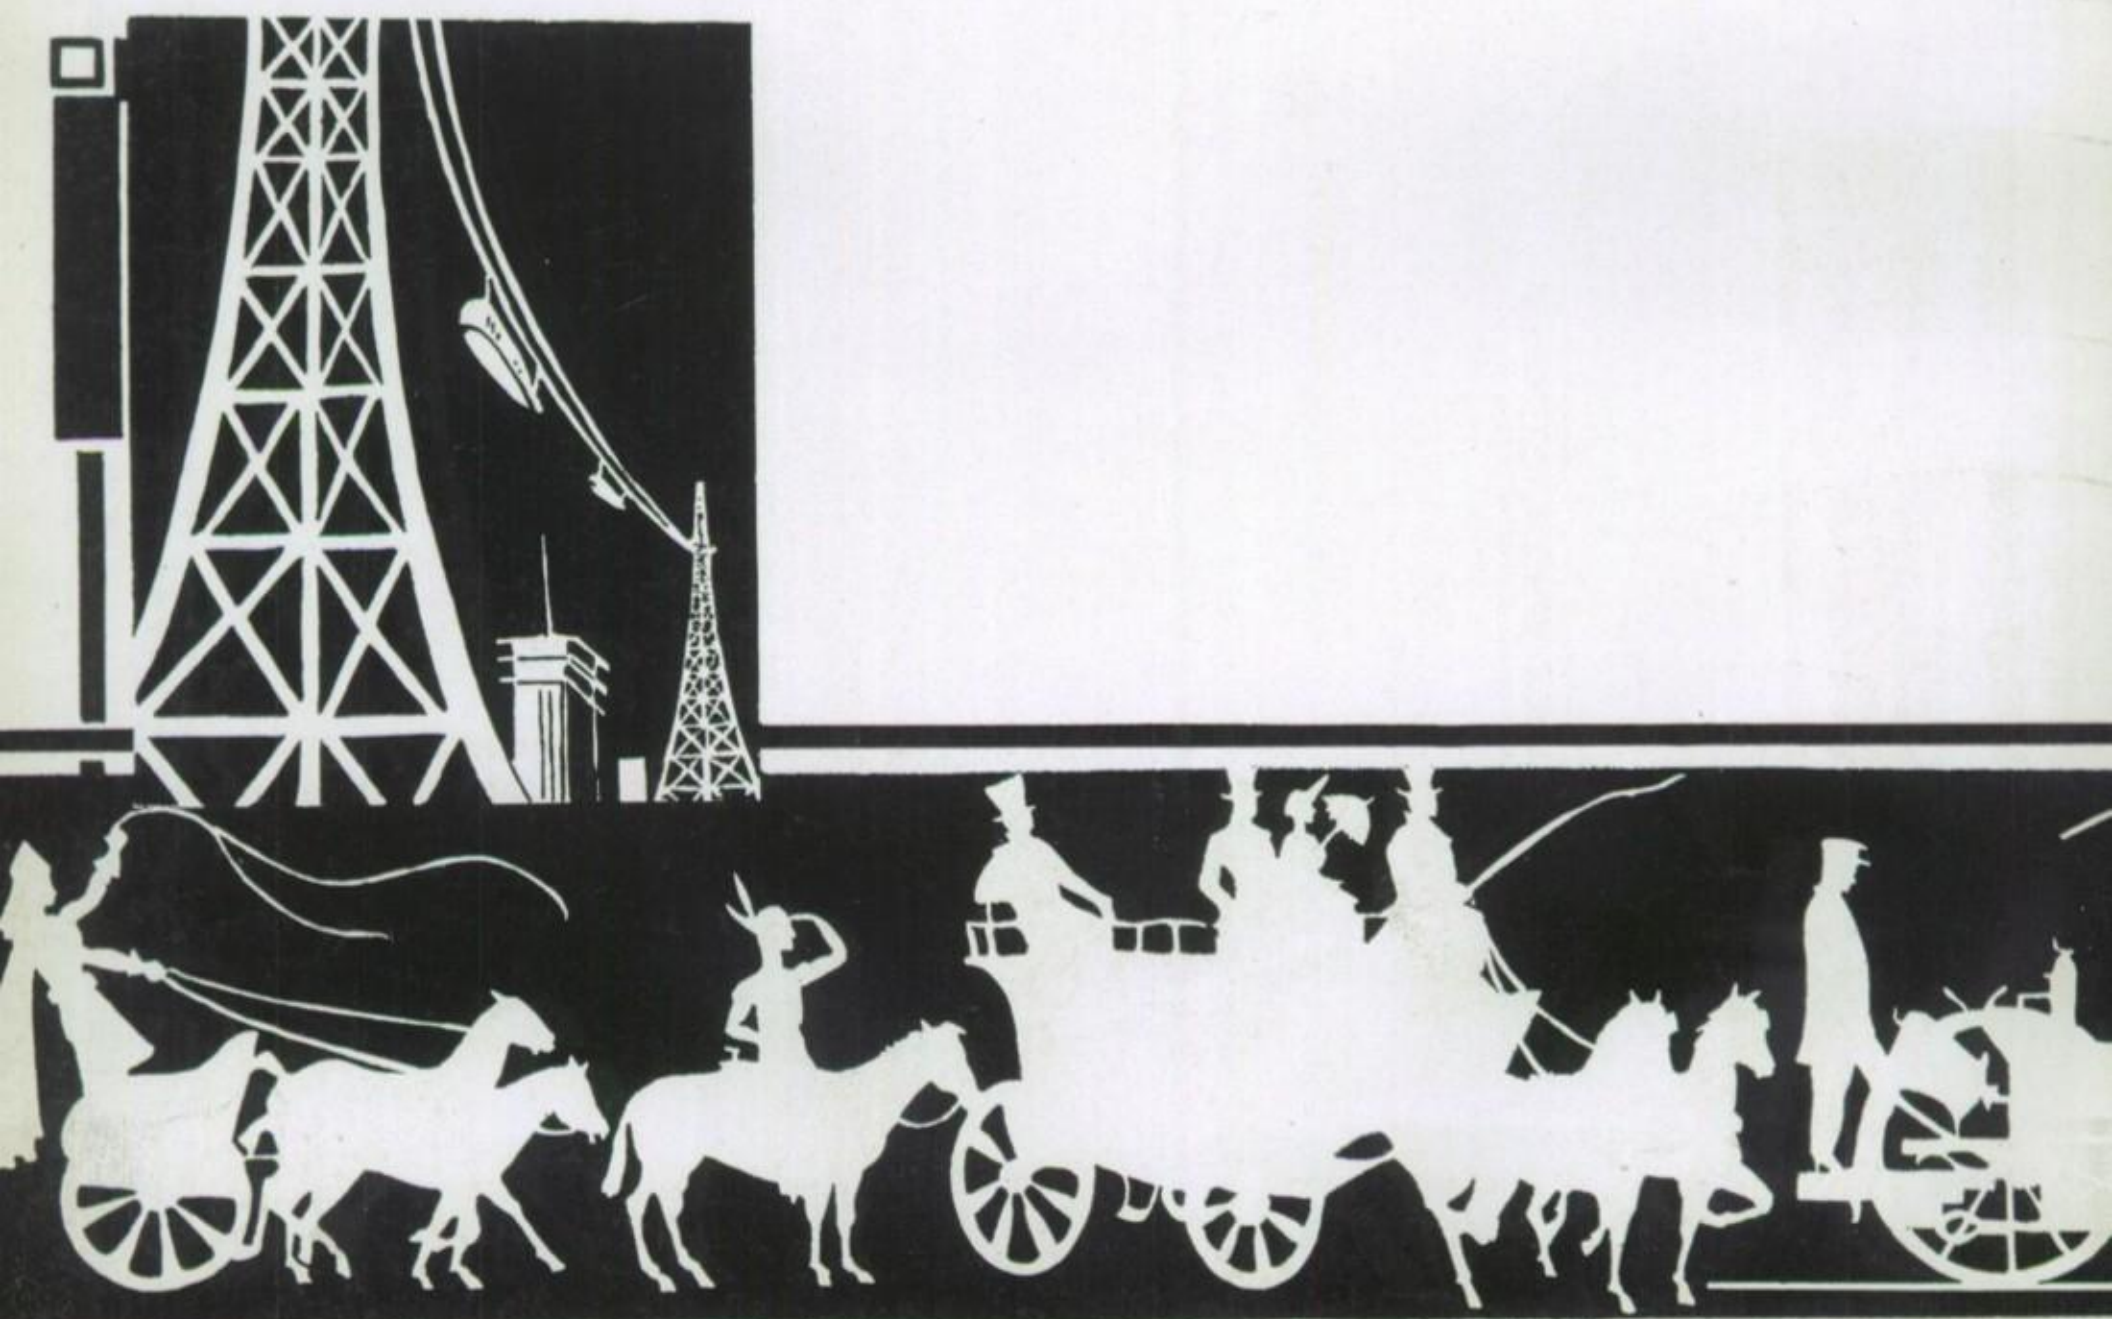

During the semester, the club gave the entertainment and furnished refreshments for the G.A.A. Visitors' Day, besides serving at the G.A.A. social. It also sponsored a hike during which new members were initiated.

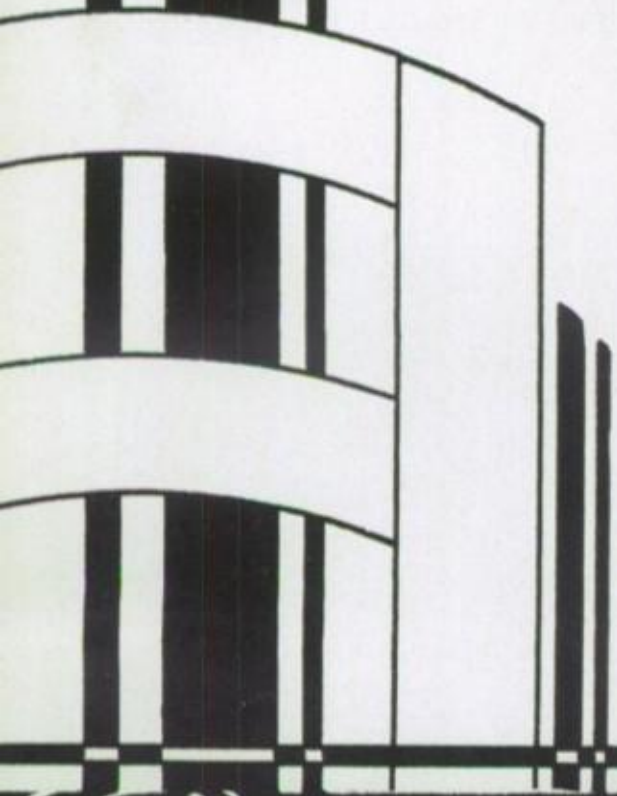

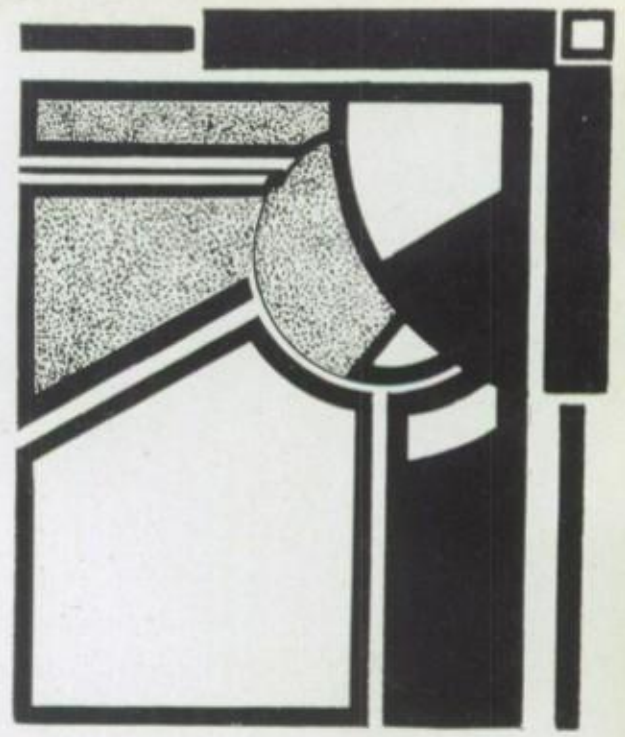

The Roleir girls take the major responsibility for all athletic functions during the year. They are extremely versatile and active in school projects.

Up in the World's Fair Sky Ride,
Towers of buildings and chimneys and all
Over the city wide?

I would be monarch of all I surveyed
Mountains of granite and lime,
Valleys and pathways crushed down 'neath them all,
Defying the roll of time.

Spinning through mid air at perilous heights,
Winds roaring 'round on each side,
Tingling with glee and yet frigid with fear
I would ride on the thrilling Sky Ride.

I should see all the people, like creatures at play
In a circus or gay jamboree
That had come from all over—France, Spain, Hungary,
Greece, China, and gay Italy.

More like a toyland, to me it would seem,
Or marionette show at full height,
With puppets a-bustling and hurrying about
To see each exhibit and sight.

Each nation displaying its science and art
Of a century's progress and pride.
I should hail as I thrilled and whirled through the air
On the newest of all joy rides.

DUSKY CITY

DUSKY, indistinct, the sleeping city is beautiful. Lights and shadows on towering buildings and gigantic factories reveal a beauty, not of materialism, but the beauty of magnificent ideals, of crystallized achievement.

With rising cadence, the metropolis awakens to the symphony of life. The squalid shacks of the poor, the comfortable homes of the middle class, the mansions of the wealthy—all disgorge their dwellers into the turbulent maw of steel and concrete. In non-ending streams, humanity is absorbed by the giant city of its creation. Day runs its course.

With the coming of twilight, the automatons grope their way to their abodes. Joy and sorrow, peace and strife, love and hate mingle in a conglomerate whole. Lights flash on; long ribbons of boulevards are crowded with rushing machines, carrying the wearied to respite.

OVER THE WEEK-END

"DA da de dumm dum," humming joyously (she knew she couldn't sing) Judith Frank literally danced home from school. "Friday at last," she kept thinking, "what a week-end this is going to be!"

Big brother Jim's frat was throwing a party Saturday night, and Judy was going with the president's cousin, Jerry, from New York; and wonder of wonders! Pierre Soubier, the secret passion of every girl at Weston High, had asked for a Sunday night date. Judy pinched herself for the fiftieth time. "I'd better quit or I'll be black and blue."

Her first stop was at the beauty shop where she treated herself to a shampoo and lemon rinse (to bring out the golden lights in her titian hair) and a finger wave "with ringlet ends, please." This luxury was made possible by a week of chocolate bar lunches. While the work of beautification was in progress, Judy sat in a trance rehearsing in her mind all the things she'd say and do—and wondered if she couldn't induce her mother to cut out just a few more inches from the back decollete of her dress.

She stopped at her very best girl friend's house to remind her to come over for a few rounds of bridge that evening, then made a dash for home. Bursting into the house, Judy nearly upset her mother, and exclaimed in one breath, "Got any eats—ye old bridge cronies meet tonight—any phone calls—gosh, I'm famished!"

Later at the bridge table, Judy played such an abominable game that the girls threatened to fold up the card table with Judy in the middle, and to store the whole mess in the dark clothes closet. Finally, "Dish—the—dirt," came from Alyce between bites of a butterscotch caramel. Trumping her partner's king, Judy shoved the trick to her opponent and rapturously went into particulars.

"The president of Jimmy's frat has his New York cousin staying with him for a visit. Well, I'm elected to go with him to the club's party tomorrow!" She paused long enough to allow them to absorb the full weight of the information. Exclamations appropriate to the demands of the occasion from all three girls served only to increase Judy's excitement. "And Mom's just finishing my dress." She ran into the kitchen, snatched an armful of silk from her mother and displayed it before her admiring friends.

The girls unanimously voiced their approval. "Oh, oh, Judy, what a low back!" "Geeee!" "Oh, that rhinestone buckle!" "I bet it fits like the skin on a banana."

Suddenly the phone rang. "Start the conversation; it's your nickel," said Judy into the phone. Three inquisitive females immediately gathered around. It was the president of Jim's fraternity. He was very sorry, but Jerry's mother was suddenly taken ill, and Jerry was leaving for New York tonight. "Please accept our apologies." Click! He had hung up.

Slowly, Judy did the same. A dimpled chin quivered, then suddenly went up. "Well, she managed to smile, "I still have my Sunday date with Pierre." Lucille hid her face in her hands and squealed, "Gee, you'll kill me." She was convulsed with laughter and could hardly speak.

"What do you mean?" snapped Judy, her hazel eyes narrowing. "It wasn't Pierre that called you last week; it was my brother," Lucille continued and again went into hysterics. "It was all a joke. You're not angry, are you?" Judy drew herself up to her full height of five feet two, and disdainfully remarked, "You certainly have a perverted sense of humor, Lucille Holden."

Stalking to the radio, Judy viciously twisted the dials and was greeted with Bing Crosby's mellow voice singing, "Ovah the weeeek—ennnd—."

LIFE'S JOYS

I'm living on love:

Love of the ocean's deep blue calm
Of the turquoise beauty of summer skies,
Of tumultuous storms, of silver moons,
Of tender dreams in a mother's eyes.

I'm living on love:

Love of the buildings, spires, and streets,
Of pulsating hurry and eager strife,
Of truths to learn, of the will to win,
Of sympathy with human life.

I'm living on love:

Love of friendships, long and true,
Of shadowy trees and shrubs and sod,
Of humble prayers, of peaceful days,
Of blessed fellowship with God.

AN AUTUMN BOUQUET

Gladiolas—golden butterflies darting back and forth in radiance of the sun—a glowing sunset of red and lemon yellow changing slowly to orange . . . a field of wheat flecked with shadow.

Coxcomb . . . a splurge of scarlet against a green background . . . the painted lips of a winsome miss . . . an irascible, fervent sun across the cool, blue waters of Lake Michigan after a day abroad . . . the peak of a lordly, loudly-crowing rooster at daybreak.

White phlox . . . tranquility and repose after a tumultuous, consummate day of labor . . . the cool, pleasing sweetness of an autumn shower . . . masses of fleecy translucent clouds seemingly motionless, the cool white coverlet on great grandmother Alyssum's high four-post bed.

IT'S MOTHER

Who is the person that's always gay,
And smiles throughout the livelong day?
Although you feel so sad and dreary,
Who always makes things bright and cheery?
It's Mother.

Who is the person with that tender smile,
Who seems so happy all the while?
The one to whom you tell your troubles,
To help you turn them into bubbles?
It's Mother.

Who is the person doing all this,
Without whom things will go amiss?
The one who never asks for praise,
The one who makes us mend our ways?
It's Mother.

THE BELLS OF CHICAGO

At Science Hall in the lofty tower
Are bells which toll at every hour
They peal and clang a varied ditty
Of life and strife in a monster city.

Bang—Dang! Bang—Clang!
Dang—Bang! Bang—Clang!
They reverberate a vivid tale;
Impressions, many they entail.

One to sixteen, the bellows roar,
Tolling the dreary hour of four.
Vacant buildings, desolate streets,
A vagrant just perchance you'd meet.

Again sixteen; it's half and eight
And toilers at a rushing rate
Crush into a jammed "L" car
Rich man, pauper—all are par.

At noon the chimes peal out once more.
It's lunch time now and from each door
The people pour—a light repast
To partake, to break the morning fast.

Two! ring the bells—and at this time
The busy loop is at its prime
A hub bub in every store;
Unlike the tranquil days of yore.

Then tolls the welcome hour of five;
From offices where long they strive,
The working folk wind their homeward way
Some weary, vexed; some bright, some gay.

Some hie along at a speedy gait,
Blessing—thanking God and Fate.
Others feel that life is vain,
Futile, empty! So inane!

At sight at night the streets are bright
Gigantic structures all alight
With powerful lamps illuminating
Peopled streets, with life pulsating.

Thus the bells toll every hour
Stalwart in their lofty tower,
Throbbing out its infinite ditty.
Of life and strife in the huge city.

THE BOARD WALK AT NAVY PIER

Windows, row on row, flanking a weather beaten roof of dark tar paper look upon the grey, thick, never-ending wooden planks which form the walk. An iron rail, mottled with rust, stretches distantly in the warm sunlight of the bright morning. The profound solitude is only broken by the waves lapping pleasantly on the pier below, or the distant "put put" of an outboard motor. On the lake, glinting in the bright sunlight, a few launches and steamers lazily move to and fro. Jutting here and there along the way are funnels and superstructures of ships tied up momentarily, while wisps of white smoke curl slowly out of their huge smokestacks and far below can be heard the rumble of freight and supplies as they are being moved swiftly into their holds. Down the mile-long board walk is the cool blackness of a doorway which ends the long journey in the sun.

SCHOOL ISN'T A BAD PLACE AT ALL, IF YOU GET THE RIGHT VIEWPOINT.

VIRTUALLY, THE ONLY REASON WE GO TO SCHOOL IS TO FIND OUT WHAT WE SHOULD DO AT HOME.

TRAVELING COMPANIONS

AN HOUR'S ride on the street car was before me. Monotony, boredom, ennui. What could I do? My eyes roamed to the extreme left. A child of, perhaps, ten years of age sat proudly with her back to her neighbor. With each toss of her well-brushed curls she proved, to anyone that was willing to notice, that she believed it to be a great achievement for one so tender in years to ride alone.

Two seats away was a man, who from the top of his brown disheveled head, to the tip of his careless square-toed sport shoes, was a bachelor. Collegiately garbed, he had an air about him of free enjoyment of life. Probably thinking of green moss beside a laughing stream, he smiled.

To the right, perched on the edge of her seat, was a distinctly expensively dressed woman. With the constant raising and lowering of her well-arched eyebrows, she portrayed, more emphatically than words what she thought of riding with the hoi polloi. At a single glance one could glean the fact that both her cars were in repair, that she detested cabs, and that she was forced to accept this horrible alternative.

Across from her, a gentleman (or was he?) was furtively making circuits of the car with his organs of vision. Surely, with those thin nervous hands he had committed some crime; surely, even now, some officer of the law was in pursuit.

"Cottage Gro-ahve!" suddenly sang the conductor in a vibrant voice. I had gone two stations passed mine!

HOPE

Our hopes lift us from earthly soil
As we monotonously toil
To heights where joy and power supreme
Are ours. Alas! that's all a dream.
But inspiration such as this
Lends bits of ecstasy and bliss,
That make reality more bright
And temporary burdens light.
But hopes, that make us happy now,
Fade out as time goes on somehow.
Experience makes us ever wise
And as we age we realize
That hopes of power, glory, fame,
Of selfishness and earthly gain,
Are vain; a worthier hope have we
By trusting in Divinity.

Gladys Anderson and Marjorie Brumbaugh.

THE SILENT CARILLON

'Twas in the year of "Thirty-three",
That Chicago gave the world to see
A Fair of pomp and circumstance,
From mechanical men to King Arthur's Lance.
It boasted and bloated and strutted and strummed
Midst blare of bugle and beat of drum,
That nowhere else this world could see
A Fair such as that of "Thirty-three."
It boasted and bloated and strutted and strummed
That the world around just had to come;
It spoke of wondrous things to see,
Sights that would dazzle you and me;
A village was brought from far-Japan,
A rubber plantation from Yucatan,
From England came the "Royal Scot",
From Africa, a Hot-ten-tot;
Men brought the pagoda from Old Ceylon
But the pride of the show was a carillon
Which was brought to the Fair from Sunny France.
By a streak of luck, 'twas only chance
That next to the hill of little San Juan,
Should rest the mighty carillon.
The newspapers said 'twould make the noise
That nursery children would leave their toys;
And of it was made such hilarity
That people forgot of prosperity,
Of beer and wine and the other things,
They wanted to hear the carillon ring;
But woe is me! Alas! Alack!
Not a soul knew how the bells to crack.
The country was searched for miles around
For a man who knew how the bells to pound;
But no one knew how the thing to play,
So silent it stood—day after day.
A month had gone, yet the man was not found,
So the carillon stood—still but sound.
Visitors came and went and came,
Yet the carillon remained the same.
But all at once, at nine one night,
Four men came running with all their might.
"He's here, at last; he's here," said they,
"The man who will make our carillon play".
Up to the belfrey, the foursome fled,
With the city's mayor at their head,
The other two men were financiers
And the fourth of them—a carilloneer.
The populace gathered and strange to say,
Just for to hear the music play.
Around the tower came the multitude
Silently standing in solitude,
The beacons turned the tower gray,
Into daylight with rainbowed array.

The hook-ups were made by radio
 And thousands sighed, "The carillon, oh!"
 And thus the mayor, a pompous sort,
 Gave vent to his feelings and with many a snort
 Said, "Go, my man, go do your best."
 The financiers nodded, "Your best, oh, yes!"
 The carilloneer, a son of France,
 Stroked his beard while his eyes did dance;
 For now had come his victory hour.
 In the belfrey of the carillon tower
 He doffed his coat, and rolled his sleeves
 Produced a 'kerchief and gave a sneeze.
 He seized his hammer, as in other days,
 The musical bells, he now would play.
 His Honor smiled, and rested back,
 "B'God, this man sure has the Knack."
 But when the carilloneer wheeled and said,
 "Monsieur, monsieur, you hav' los' ze head,
 One moment, plees, and I weel tells;
 Ze carillon—she has no bells!"
 For under the hill of little San Juan,
 Were buried the bells of the carillon.

The moral, my friends, the moral I say,
 Is, "Put off 'til tomorrow what you would do today."

Howard Teichmann.

HWA MEI LING

BENT, shrivelled, cowering in the shelter afforded by a shadowy doorway, the ancient beggar woman squats and observes with aged yet sharp eyes the vari-colored throngs that pass up and down the narrow streets of Nanking. All the glamour, the pathos, the age-old inscrutability of China hover about Hwa Mei Ling as she holds out a withered palm for alms. She eyes with care every individual who passes before her, murmuring a blessing to the few who carelessly give her a coin.

As she sits thus, she muses on the past. She remembers the glorious, sunlit days of her early youth, when she dwelt in the imperial capital city of Peking, now the modern Peiping. She recalls her youthful friends—gay, happy, blythe—living only for the pleasures of life and amusing themselves the entire day.

Then, a fierce, savage expression settles on the wrinkled face of the weary Hwa Mei Ling. She is thinking of the day when she was sold by her poverty-stricken parents into the service of a lesser lord of the capital. Faintly—faintly, she recalls the dull beaten face of her anguished mother and the stern visage of her father as she was carried away to the huge house of her new master.

A new light comes into the dim eyes of Hwa Mei Ling—her affianced, Yo Shin! He was a guard in the service of the most honorable emperor, crushed by the sweating hands of the fierce Mongol tribesmen. Tears—a blast of wind sweeps through the street and flutters the rags of the old one. Yo Shin! was it yesterday or a thousand years ago? Tears—Hwa Mei Ling had once a peach blossom skin. The silver temple bells ring—

CHICAGO ILLUMINATED

MIDNIGHT—Chicago—darkness—light. A train with its powerful engine puffed and "chugged" its way into the colossal station, as an arrow, long and slender penetrates a heart. From a dusty, old window of the Northwestern train, I saw against the ebony sky, lights—glowing, ephemeral, misty.

The Merchandise Mart, one of Chicago's most inspiring buildings, stood there like a giant Christmas tree aglow, beckoning, defying, boasting, welcoming travelers. Its proud lights showed its beauty in the enshrouding darkness. The Wrigley Building, lofty and stately, had its share of illumination. Soothing, amber-hued lights displayed its slender tower. The black haunting waters of the Chicago River reflected on the ripples of its shiny surface, strips of light like quivering steel swords. The Chicago Bridge rose to let a sooty lake barge pass through. Red lights on this vessel threw a faint glow into the interior portals of its being. Like a fearless army pushing forward were the automobiles with their bright, blinding lights. Onward they moved, stopping but for red and green traffic lights.

The numerous electrical signs, mechanical devices for advertising, and the various manifestations of light put me into a reflective mood. The Lindbergh Beacon, sending out its far-reaching glare, seemed symbolic of power, independence, reliability.

The train stopped. I gazed about at the luminous spectacle—at the beauty of Chicago, a city—striving, achieving, visioning.

Mildred Kleiman.

WOODLAND JOYS

Listen to the river as it sparkles and chatters while it runs! The sweet breath of the great pine trees give life to the peaceful quiet of the woods. A bird shoots through the leafy branches, sounding a wild, but sweet note. Here and there a creature of the ground darts in and out among the foliage, which seem to bow to the trees. A bit of the azure sky peeps down with unblinking eye on the soul-satisfying scene. A light breeze murmurs to the leaves as if in approval of the serene beauty of nature. White and purple flowers shyly lift their heads as if in fear of the great giants above them. The river continues to chatter and laugh, "Joy, joy, joy!"

Selma Wolinsky

COGITATION

Is there a plan—
A rule of my destiny?
What part am I
In this infinity?
Is there a God—
A Being so supreme
Or is't a myth,
And life a dream?

If life's a dream
Then why the sorrow?
Live today,
Forget tomorrow.
The tears of yesterday
Are gone and past—
Perhaps today brings
Happiness to last.

AMBITIONS IN RHYME

June Goldberg, whose name will start this list,
Is planning to be a journalist.

Marjorie Koepke, a movie fan,
Will be a wife to an ideal man.

Marjorie Brumbaugh this did give,
"All I wish is to love and live."

Len Pivovitz has one ambition,
To be a really fine physician.

George Baker, who is never blue,
Will draw cartoons for Ballyhoo.

Florence Kupersmith, the busy bee,
Would like to earn a college degree.

Ida Snyder, so light and airy,
Will be Walt Winchell's secretary.

Adeline Glasser, the pride of her mother,
Hopes to find Gracie Allen's brother.

Marian Schacter—you must meet her—
Says she will be a history teacher.

Doris Christell will never curse,
Yet swears she's going to be a nurse.

Estelle Finkel, with her great brain,
Desires to ride atop a train.

George Modell has ambition to be
Lieutenant in the R. O. T. C.

Abe Raff—beware! oh, girls, resist—
Is going to be a bigamist.

Melvin Salk wants to be, oh!
An Albie Booth of Chicago

Freida Doolittle gave us this answer,
That she will be a ballet dancer.

Peggy Scher thinks 'twould be fitting
If at West Point she taught knitting

Della Poetsch, a good addition,
Wants to be a dietician.

Abe Berland, who loves his maw,
Expects to be a success in law.

Richard Caul, the ladies' treat,
Will be a specialist for feet.

John Gallichio, among the best,
Will be a concert pianist.

Charles Kabin, who is a merry old soul,
Has ambitions to make the honor roll.

Charles Beck, who is a dandy dancer,
Would like to find a cure for cancer.

Gus Horschke—"gut immer"—
Wants to be an Olympic swimmer.

Don Lawrence to us did say
He'd like to meet Lupe Velez.

Ed. Matthews, in whose soul lies romance,
Said he would like to take a chance.

Gertrude Hubke—she'll always progress—
Has set her heart to go to Congress.

Clarence Steichmann did show his valor
When he said, "I want to be a sailor."

Anne Kornfeld, becoming a perfect martyr,
Yearns to be a court reporter.

Louise Messerschmitt has lots of spunk;
She would like to be a "Taylor Trunk."

Ann Pritikin, with tickets for raffles,
Wishes to consume a bushel of apples.

Solveig Grundeland, with the tide,
Would like to travel far and wide.

Selema Hesser, who's some conniver,
Would like to be Mr. Gaffney's adviser.

Elaine Klasek, who we must pardon,
Will be an actress like Mary Garden.

Gertrude Schwarz will write dramatically
A story that will end quite tragically.

Sylvia Zeidman—with many dates—
Aspires to know everyone in the States.

Charles Anderson—it's no small crime—
Has no ambition and ends this rhyme.
